About the Orientation Programme:

The socio-economic upliftment of rural youth is a critical aspect of overall rural development. Empowering young people in rural areas not only improves their individual prospects but also contributes to the growth and sustainability of rural communities as a whole. Providing access to quality education and vocational training is essential for rural youth to acquire the skills needed for employment or entrepreneurship. This can include formal education programs, technical training, and workshops on various trades relevant to local industries.
